The Last Congress.

It has unhappily become customary to denounce Congress when it adjourns, and the organs of the party which has controlled Congress are in the habit of meeting the denunciation with feeble apologies and deprecations. But not even these will be brought forward in behalf of the Forty-seventh Congress. As Cromwell said of the Tory Parliament after he had dissolved it: "There was not a dog to bark at their going." This Congress leaves no apologists and no friends.

It is one of the anomalies of our system that a whole session of Congress may pass before the elected representatives of the people can come together to execute the will of the people. At this last session the first effort, we believe, has been made to remove this anomaly by legislation. It is natural that the effort should now have been made, for the anomaly has never been made, for the session of the Forty-seventh Congress has been held in defiance of a direct, emphatic and almost unprecedented condemnation by the people of the acts and omissions of the first session of that body. It is not worth while, perhaps, to attempt to apportion among measures or among men the exact share of discredit into which the first session brought this Congress. The acceptance of a man so tainted as Robeson as the leader of the majority, and of Robeson's man Keifer as the Speaker, excited a public disgust which was deepened by Robeson's selections for committees. He put himself at the head of two important committees, one of them the Committee on Naval Expenditures, in which it was commonly believed that he would take advantage of the experience he had acquired in the Navy Department of the manner in which he could most easily break into the Treasury. He put a colorless member, Mr. Hiscock, at the head of the Committee on Appropriations, and Mr. Hiscock soon acquired a color, and a very dark color, as a man who could be trusted not to scrutinize appropriations provided only they were lavish. He put Reed, of Maine, at the head of the Judiciary Committee, though Reed had no standing whatever as a jurist, and Reed speedily showed that it was not necessary to be a lawyer but only a man of business in order to extract profitable opportunities from what had always been thought a committee of much honor but of few commercial chances. Reed contrived to have the question of the forfeiture of the land grants to the Southern Railway put before the committee, and to prevent for two sessions any legislation looking towards a forfeiture. Without saying that Reed was bribed, we may see that Reed's reports and Reed's action were worth an enormous sum of money to the corporation in question, and that any man, lawyer or layman, who would father those reports and take that action without being hired to take it would be a very great fool.

Of the measures jobbed and log-rolled through the first session by these men the River and Harbor bill excited the most intense indignation. But it was the distinction to chance rather than to any supremacy of merit. It took a great amount of money out of the Treasury at a single haul, it was pushed through Congress in the face of outspoken public disapproval and it encountered the President's veto. But it was no worse or more profligate than the lavish appropriations for public buildings, or than a dozen other acts for which it became the scapegoat. In fact, the pain for impudent rascality probably belongs to the treatment of the Northern Pacific question by the majority of Reed's committee, who, with the help of Keifer, has prevented the question from coming before the House at all. The solemn sham of the Tariff Commission was also among the efficient causes of the public indignation, but for this the President must at least share the responsibility with Congress. He might have appointed a Commission which would not have been a sham.

Whatever the causes, the fact remains that the Forty-seventh Congress met for its second session under a burden of popular disgust such as no previous Congress has ever had to carry, and which had already changed its efficient majority into a weak minority of the Forty-eighth Congress. The second session has done nothing whatever to relieve the odium the Republican party sustained from the acts of the first, and the last act of Congress was fitly enough the helpless adoption of a tariff of which not one of its advocates professed to be able to foretell the results either upon revenue or upon business.

—N. Y. World.

—The divorced wife of Silson Hutchins, of the Washington Post, sent him a letter, which he received the day of his recent marriage to Miss Brady, in which she and their two children sent their love and congratulations. She hoped this union would bring him the contentment he had failed to find in his first marriage. He and his new wife are in Europe, where they will spend the summer. When they return their new house will be ready for them. It is to the credit of Mr. Hutchins that he provides well for his first wife. —Chicago Herald.

—A young man by the name of Worley accidentally shot and killed himself, near Des Moines, Ark., a few days since. Worley went out squirrel-hunting, and becoming tired and worn out sat down on a tall stump, near the field where he was seen by a colored man, and upon jumping from the stump struck the hammer of his gun against it, the charge passing through the heart.

Mahone's Political Status.

If Mr. Mahone were directly charged with being a Republican he would indignantly deny the accusation. Neither Mahone nor any one of his Democratic recruits will confess to Republicanism. He and they still claim to be Democrats and affect resentment of any imputation against their Democracy. But Mr. Mahone is either a Republican outright or he is something that ought to be far more objectionable to the Democratic mind than any decent member of the Republican party. He is either a cowardly Republican who dares not own his party name, or he is a renegade Democrat selling his influence to the Republican party. If he does not hold the opinions of the Republican party he is like the Hessian ruler who sold battalions to the British a hundred years ago. If he does hold those opinions, he is a pitiful specimen of abject moral cowardice, afraid or ashamed to be known for what he is. Taking either horn of the dilemma, reckoning Mahone as a trading Hessian or a Republican coward, and we have such a leader as Democrats can not follow in the programme laid out for the campaign of 1884. That programme is the amalgamation of the Readjusters with the National Republican party. There is no longer any disguise. The local question that divided the Virginia Democrats is settled and put out of the way forever. Those Democrats who, in future, adhere to Mahone and his failing fortunes, will do so with the full understanding that he regards them as the Hessian contingent which he is to barter for patronage. While he professes to hold aloof from the Republican organization, he does so because his position gives him greater importance; because he, with the balance of power in his hands and with promises of great things in 1884, can command much better terms than he could as a regular member of the "grand old party." It is a good time now, while there is no intense political excitement, for Democrats who have been with Mahone on the debt question, to calmly consider whether they can march with him into the Republican campaign of 1884 as a part of his stock in trade. If any of those Democrats have become converted to the Republican creed they will not be true Virginians if they are not brave enough to take their black Republican brethren by the hand and fully, openly, boldly avow their change of faith. The Old Dominion has never yet been degraded as to have her Presidential vote sold, but such a sale is contemplated by Mahone, and he really counts on his army of recruits to hold him to his Democratic supporters in a National campaign and delivering their votes for Republican Presidential Electors. —Washington Post.

—No Further Use for the Negro.

It is very clear that the Republican party has no further use for the colored man—except in a menial capacity. When his vote was wanted he was "a man and a brother" to be honored, respected and protected at all hazards from the ravenous Democrats, to whom he might possibly give his vote if not sedulously watched. But now that the purchase of Mahone and Riddberger has made his vote of less consequence, he has become, in the chaste language which the Post and Tribune once adopted in speaking of him, a "darkey" again.

Nothing could better illustrate the colored man's present low condition, as compared with his former importance in the Republican estimate, than the case of Black, the laborer in the Naval Bureau of Construction and Repair at Washington. Black was a colored man, but such a sale is contemplated by Mahone, and he really counts on his army of recruits to hold him to his Democratic supporters in a National campaign and delivering their votes for Republican Presidential Electors. —Washington Post.

FRANK CARTER.

Chief of the Bureau wanted him to do menial service in the former's household—to black the family boots and scour the knives and make himself generally useful—Black rebelled. Worm as he was, he turned and refused to do the work of a private servant. Thereupon his chief ordered him to resign, and he did so.

Ten years ago such an instance of trifling with the black man would have excited more commotion in Washington than the marriage of a divorced Senator or one of Wiggins' storms. The Republican press would have blazed with headlines denouncing the outrage. The Civil Rights bill would have been printed in full with the Fourteenth Amendment in italics, and the party of great moral ideas would have been appealed to by all its memories of past greatness and all its hopes of future success to punish the man who had trampled on "the gentleman from Africa." And the Secretary of the Navy, in the name of an indignant party, would have reinstated the discarded black man, while he reprimanded or court-martialed or otherwise tortured his oppressor.

Now all this is changed. The colored man's resignation is approved by the Secretary of the Navy and the verdict of the Republican party is, in effect, that he had no business to be "a nigger" in the first place, and that, being such, he had no business in the second place to refuse to do any menial service that was asked at his hands by those in authority over him. The colored man has indeed fallen from his high estate when he can thus be treated by the party which has been so profuse heretofore in protestations of affection for him. —Detroit Free Press.

—In a county in Nevada is a hill of moving sand four miles long, a mile wide, and from one hundred to four hundred feet high. Within a few years the hill has traveled a mile. —Denver Tribune.

St. Louis boasts of three widows, each worth over one million dollars.

Henry Ward Beecher attended the opera, last week, for the first time in his life.

Peter Cooper, the philanthropist, is dead, and a volume could not contain the noble acts performed by this good man. His heart and purse was ever open for the worthy poor.

"Ja-key" Schaefer "knocked the Frenchman out" at billiards, and took the first prize at the Chicago tournament, being $1,200 in money and a miniature billiard table, in gold and diamonds.

The Ende house at Greenville, Tex., fell at 3 o'clock a. m., on April 7. The ruins took fire and bodies were burned. Fifty lives are known to be lost. The building was a new one, built within the last year. It has been considered unsafe for some time, as the walls were only eight inches thick, and the excavation under the house made it more unsound. The hotel was a three story brick.

Don Perry favors us with a copy of the Cherokee Advocate, published at Tallahassee, Cherokee Nation. We enjoyed its columns very much, especially those printed in the Cherokee language. We notice an article on the statehood of the Indian Territory, by D. W. C. Duncan. Mr. Duncan is a Cherokee, and when we knew him when he was a practicing lawyer at Charles City, Iowa.—Seneca, (Ka.) Tribune.

EVERYBODY seems very much pleased with the result of our late city election. To be sure, the unsuccessful candidates would rather be in the position of their more fortunate rivals, but we are convinced that all our citizens, irrespective of their personal feelings, are now ready to pull into line and do all in their power to advance any scheme that will be for the city's good. This is as it should be, and speaks well for the good judgment and intelligence of our citizens. Let all take a strong pull and a long pull and a pull all together and all will be surprised to see the amount of good that can be accomplished by this union of action.

THE TIMES is now moved into its new quarters, and are getting things put to rights as fast as possible. We hope our readers will excuse the patient which we run this week, as it was a necessity, if we "got out" on time. We have overhauled the office entirely, cleaning presses, making improvements, putting in new material, and a thousand and one other things which all eat up time. Our new office, the room formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A., has been thoroughly refitted for us, and we can now boast of a roomy and convenient place in which to do business. We hope our people will call often, and see us, as we are always glad to have you come in, whether you are needing "printer's ink" or not. THE TIMES will make additional changes within the next month, all of which we hope our citizens will appreciate, as they seem likely to have done in the past.

We had occasion to say a few words for Mr. H. D. Field before the election—not by any solicitation on the part of that gentleman, however, as the writer of this was not at that time acquainted with him. We fully reiterate what we stated at that time, and are free to join with the voters, who have again placed Mr. Field in the position of city treasurer, in saying that their choice is a wise one. In the time past, that he has officiated in a similar position, THE TIMES has yet to hear the first word of censure regarding his official career. On the contrary, much has been said complimentary, not only regarding him as an efficient officer, but a courteous and upright gentleman in the fullest sense of the term. Now that he is elected and will continue serving the people of this city, we are satisfied he will ever hold, as he has done in the past, the vital interests of our citizens uppermost in his official actions. In the hurry of last week the proof was not properly read, and a mistake in his majority was made. It was stated in THE TIMES as being 41 when it should have been 131.

THE OUTLOOK.

"The hand writing is on the wall" and the outlook for the future is one of gloom and desolation. The city of Eureka Springs was never, in its most prosperous days, more flattering than now. Every hand are signs and indications of thrift, energy and a general revival of all business. Spring, Main Street, at all hours of the day, presents a live and go-ahead appearance. The mechanic, the laborer, merchant, and professional man, all have plenty to do. Among the estate men, the demand for houses and property is steadily on the increase, and with the approach of tied weather, values of all kinds will be on the rise. Houses on the main are fast being filled with people, and a large influx of visitors arriving daily.

It is the history of all cities, that have sprung up with the suddenness of which this one did, that sooner or later, they have to stop to breathe, and to a certain extent become dull and a general depression in business is felt. Then beyond a point comes the second boom, a revival in all branches of trade, values in real property increase according to location, etc., and once fixed under this rule, a healthy growth takes hold of the town, or city. Eureka Springs has passed these "mild posts," and to-day on a more solid basis than has been known in the history of the Eastern capital is looking this way, and will soon be at the command of those who wish to use it. Another thing which will be of great advantage not only to the city, but to every one in the State, and that is: Arkansas is fast coming to the front as one of the richest states in agriculture, and mineral resources of any State Union. She has been neglected, have advertised Kansas, Dakota, Colorado Nebraska and other states, and have let us severely alone. Consequently the tide of immigration passed by us. Things have changed now, and the natural wealth of the State is her advertisement, and she is now becoming known for what she really is, a mine of natural wealth, and only awaits American push and energy to develop it. This is being done, and its influence is being felt in every city town village hamlet throughout the state. The city enjoys a little more than its share of this prosperity, from the fact of the many local advantages which she has. Here is a world of reputation, and is sought after by thousands for their curative powers. People from almost every portion of the globe visit us, and are benefited. These springs of themselves would be enough to insure the success of the city, but in addition to this, vast mineral rock abound in and around us. We have a marble which is fast becoming known, and is pronounced to be without a superior. Out and over the mountains the eye meets one of the best farming districts in the Union. What more, then, can be asked, for out of which to construct a lasting and thriving city. Certainly nothing. This we have got, and this will be bound to remain, and out of it will this city continue to prosper. Our facilities for transportation are good, the Eureka Springs railway company having done and are still doing all in their power to move the vast amount of freight handled by them with dispatch, and at all times using every effort for the convenience and comfort of the traveling public. THE TIMES feels it making no idle boast when it says that everything in and around us denote advancement and prosperity. It now remains for the croakers to stop their croaking, and go to work with those who are ready and will do anything for our city's good. The once being done, "all will be well for these people," and it will be the means of soon heralding the time when thousands will be happy to record themselves as citizens of Eureka Springs.

Henry Clay Dean, of Rebel Cave, Missouri, has been preaching in town lately. He was prevailed upon to bathe himself in the Coon river near Des Moines, and discovered he had an undershirt he had worn in Iowa in 1871. The fish in that river are dying by thousands.

It seems to me that some one of our usually efficient police committed an outrage last week on one of our best citizens in arresting him for simply clapping his hands at a dog fight. Of course we want good order and peace preserved, but it requires a considerable stretch of the imagination for me to see any breach of the peace in clapping hands in a dog fight. Of course the gentleman paid his fine rather than be at the expense and loss of time to fight it, but nevertheless he feels that a great injustice has been done him, and so would any one similarly situated.

In a Quandary

The Eureka Springs TIMES says it cannot understand why a sprain in the Queen's leg should affect her stomach. Ah, Don! You have no right to see the connection between them.

Going to Meet His Savior.

Howard Underwood, a colored gentleman, was "worked off" at Charleston, last Friday, with the blood of Bell Lucas on his hands. He was waited on by the clergy, who administered spiritual solace to him, as will be seen by the following speech made on the gallows:

"My brothers and sisters, white and black: I am standing on the banks of eternity. I am happy to say I am at rest with Jesus. I am going with golden slippers and long white robe to walk up and down the streets of glory. I am in Jesus and He in me. I want to tell you all to love each other; be honest and live right."

Arkansas Etiquette.

Two young ladies, by their pleasant and becoming actions, attracted the attention of two young men during service at one of the most fashionable churches of our city, on last Sunday night, so much so that one of them, the most prying, who was prompted by the other, carefully drew out his pencil and paper, penned a few lines and handed the paper to one of the said ladies, which she carefully perused, and found to read as follows: "If you young ladies will waive the code, we will take pleasure in introducing ourselves, and see you home after church. We live in this city and are well acquainted. This caused the eyes of the fair damsels to sparkle like dew drops on honey-suckles in May, and to respond readily, and which read thus: Miss Jones and Smith would be pleased to form of the two gentlemen, but our company is engaged for this eve. Now, the young men's names were C. P. Brown, alias, and W. C. Hall, alias.

Mr. Brown then wrote and asked if a formal introduction at some future time would be agreeable, which was answered in the affirmative by Miss Jones. Mr. Brown then drew a nice card from his pocket and wrote "Compliments of C. P. Brown," which was responded to thus, "Compliments returned, Josie Jones." "Now, may I consider myself acquainted with you?" wrote Mr. Brown. Certainly, responded Miss Jones. Me too, wrote Hall. Oh yes, said she. By this time Mr. Ray—bello, we are about to tell where this all occurred. Anyhow after church Mr. Brown approached Miss Jones and said, "Miss Jones I am proud indeed that I have formed your acquaintance, but sorry that I had to deviate from the rules of Arkansas etiquette to realize this pleasure." Mr. Hall trembling, then said, "Miss Smith, I am proud indeed that I have deformed your assailants, but sorry that I had to levitate the rules of Arkansas etiquette." Hold, said Brown, addressing the ladies, this man is infested with hysterics, and hurried Hall out of the house.

Morse, the boss baker, has blood in his eye, looking for the man who called his mules rabbits. All we have to say is that, those rabbits carry more solid comfort to homes in this city than all the mules in the state.

If you are hungry or tired, go to George Hayford's, Main street, and he will sell you enough groceries for a whole meal for just what you have, and you can set down under the cool shade of his capacious awnings and rest.

The firm of Shannon & Sharrock was dissolved the 15th of this month by mutual consent, and Mr. Sharrock can now be found at the office of J. R. Pulliam, J. P., where he will be pleased to meet with all of his old clients.

Landaker, notwithstanding his late promotion to the honorable position of alderman from the first ward, is just as modest and unassuming as ever. He weighs just as much sugar or coffee for a dollar as he did, and is selling dry goods faster than any body.

We are authorized to say to the dear public, and we are inclined to coincide with some, that Mrs. Cunningham has the most complete assortment of goods ever brought to this city, consisting chiefly of millinery, dress goods and trimmings, in almost endless variety. Silks, satines, lawns, cambrics, prints and ginghams, cretonne and ladies' cloth of the latest styles. Low, and one price strictly adhered to. A few hundred yards of carpet on hand at cost and carriage.

CITY ITEMS.

A good many felt uneasy yesterday morning, fearing we were going to have a cyclone.

The Basin spring reservation has been cleaned off and sown to blue grass, which will add greatly to the beauty of that romantic spot.

G. H. Brooks, trance speaker, will lecture at City Hall Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Written questions will be answered pertaining to the spiritual phil.

When a man picks up a Cherokee paper and tries to convince the crowd that "these are my sentiments," we are led to believe that he is the proper man to settle this land question.

The number of canes presented to members of the legislature would lead one to believe that body to have been weak in the knees. The three-mile liquor law does not affect Little Rock.

A new hack was purchased last week by Mr. Hughes, in Springfield. Wilson manipulates the mules in front of it, and seems to come from the depot every day with a good load.

Every disease that human flesh is heir to is represented at Eureka Springs, but a lovely bright day never fails to create a smile on the uncomely faces of their unfortunate victims.

Preaching at the Baptist church next Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., and at 8 o'clock p. m. Theme for morning, "Christ all in all." Theme for evening, "Why Baptists restrict the Lord's Supper." Come, let us reason together. C. N. RAY, Pastor.

A distressing accident occurred to Mr. Jones, the barber, last Tuesday. While sliding a large box down a plank the board broke, falling on his foot, partially dislocating his ankle joint. Medical aid was promptly summoned and he is now able to be out.

You men who want to get rid of your property, make out your deeds and have them ready, buyers are already here. It is only a matter of time when new, fashionable and modern residences will take the place of the little cabs now sitting on these hills and hill-sides.

People coming to Eureka Springs with anything to sell in the line of hides, wool, pelts, furs, tallow, feathers, ginseng, beeswax, etc., can't do better than to stop at the very highest price in cash is paid for the above named articles. Place of business, in Times Office building, J. Marienthal, proprietor.

Our attention was attracted by one of the peculiar feats of nature, on yesterday about 9 a. m., in the shape of a cool rain and sharp hail storm, the beauty of which was, it lasted but a short time. Such weather soon becomes monotonous to those who have shed their winter raiment and have anticipated reveling in the pleasant luxuries of spring.

Little Oscar, a son of J. C. Taylor, fell off the side walk near W. R. Nichols store, a distance of some eight or ten feet, on Tuesday afternoon, striking his head first, inflicting a severe and dangerous wound, and which knocked him senseless. He was at once taken to Dr. Hardesty, who dressed the wound and pronounced it severe. Boys should be careful and avoid dangerous places.

The Carroll building on Main street is being overhauled and repaired, and sheriff Freeman has rented a portion of it in which to hold our court. The location is good, and will make a splendid point in which to dispense justice. Capt. Carroll has gone to work with a vim, to supply every accommodation for this purpose and has succeeded admirably. Our people should feel under obligations to him.

Attention is respectfully called to the report of Chief of Police, Ivey, of the funds received by him for the support of the night watchmen, and the disbursement thereof. An unjust and wholly uncalled for rumor has been circulated that Mr. Ivey had not properly handled the money which came into his hands for this purpose. Any person in looking over the trial balance which he this week presents, cannot fail to see that he has honestly carried out the intention of the fund, and should receive the endorsement of all who contributed to it. Now that Mr. Ivey has been before the people and defeated for the office to which he aspired, we think it unjust and unkind to put in circulation a rumor, which, in its effect, would have a tendency to impeach his honesty, without cause. He met with strong opposition and was beaten, and we think should receive that consideration which is due him.

A reporter of this paper took in the spot on Tuesday to see the iron horse glide in safely. Going down main street, he was prompted by some good motive to call on Alderman Putman, who is and has been for about two years, running a first class little grocery. After a very agreeable conversation, Mr. Putman's laughter came in and invited the said reporter to step over to the residence and hear some music, which was readily accepted, as all young men like music, which he heard by the Misses Putman, who are accomplished and interesting young ladies. Arriving at the depot he found the train about an hour behind time. But finally it came slowly puffing in as if heavily laden, and it was, for at least forty minutes, were greeted by the bystanders, a large proportion of whom were drummers, who used all earthly endeavors to decoy new arrivals who were not acquainted, to go to their house. One passenger expressed himself by saying "These drummers are getting to be very monotonous here." But we can endure almost anything now as Eureka is recognized as being strictly on the boom, which we will all more readily realize about the May term of the circuit court of Eureka Springs.

Joe. Shaw is now in the post office, where he is in charge of a full line of stationery, etc. Joe will not plow this season.

Col. Stephens, M. C., former President of the M. K. & T. R. R., is in the city. He is an old friend of Mr. John S. Tibbs.

Mrs. Bauman, son and mother, of Ada, Ohio, are visiting the Springs, the guests of their brother and son, G. S. Thomas.

A. Burden, a tonsorial artist from Kansas City, is now in the city, and came found on Main street, where he will clip you in the shortest order.

Ol. Faucher, of Berryville, swooped down upon us Tuesday like a summer cloud. It is good for all diseases to meet a man like the Col., as he will dispell the blues with as much ease as a child will handle a marble.

A. M. Sandidge, editor of the Progress, at Marshall, Mo., gave us a social visit Monday. We found him a very pleasant and unassuming gentleman. His paper, the Progress, is one of the leading weeklies in his state, and THE TIMES wishes him long and continued prosperity.

Ion. Wm. Forsyth, city passenger agent of St. Louis, complimented our office with a pleasant call on Tuesday. He brought his wife here, who will remain this summer for her health. Mr. Forsyth spoke in the highest terms of the springs, and said he thought Eureka had a bright future before her.

Dr. P. Guiot has opened an office in the Tanner building, and will again resume the practice of his profession in this city. The doctor is an educated gentleman and well versed in the science of medicine. He is a graduate from one of the best Spanish schools, as well as from one of the leading schools of America. The doctor's many friends are happy to see him once more actively engaged in his profession. We would call attention to his card published this week.

The Hotel will fully accommodate fifty people, with elegant apartments, and will accommodate as many more for meals and day board. With Col. Lair and his estimable lady, as managers of the Silver House it cannot but prove to be one of the best hotels in the city.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE.

Quite a severe storm passed over Little Rock on the night of the 3d. Many houses had their roofs blown off, the entire front of the street car stables was blown in. The telephone wires were badly damaged, and the loss in the city will reach a figure in the thousands.

The Cyclone.

A terrific cyclone traversed the state from the south last night that did much damage to life and property. No definite account of all the damage done can yet be given, owing to the fact that all the wires entering the city are broken except those on the Memphis road.

Mr. C. A. Stockton, president of the Beebe and Clarendon road, came in on the south Iron Mountain train last night. He reports that the cyclone struck the Hot Springs train about midway between Malvern and Hot Springs, and lifted the hindmost car off the track. The coupling broke and the car was precipitated down an embankment, upsetting the passengers and piling them with the seats together in one conglomerated mud-dle. None of the passengers were killed, though all were more or less hurt. The engine with the front cars remained on the track, and the passengers were gathered from the wreck and safely landed at Malvern. The cyclone crossed the Iron Mountain track near Alexander, where several houses were blown down.

All along the track from Malvern to Benton the farms were damaged by blown down fencing. Communication with Hot Springs will hardly be opened to-day.—Arkansas Democrat of the 1th inst.

Notice to the Public.

WHEREAS, It has been publicly circulated by Dr. J. H. Nuttall, of this city, that we, the undersigned, were instigators or abettors to his arrest on yesterday, we hereby positively state that the report, as circulated by said Dr. Nuttall, is unjust and malicious in itself. We understand that the Grand Jury of Carroll county indicted Dr. Nuttall for perjury, and that the arrest was made by an order of the circuit court. We have had nothing to do with the Grand Jury, whatever, and knew nothing of the matter until after the indictment.

We ask the public to give this their careful attention, and after inquiry, judge of the fairness of this uncalled for accusation.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE P. YOUNG,
J. C. FRITTS,

EUREKA SPRINGS, Ark., April 7, 1883.

P. S.—We deem it but just and proper to here append a statement as made by Capt. Fritts. "Neither Dr. Young nor Dr. Ducker have at any time assisted or aided me to have Dr. J. H. Nuttall indicted for perjury. I, with several others, were summoned before the Grand Jury at the March term of the Circuit Court, and questioned as to what Dr. Nuttall had sworn in open court, and as to the real facts, and the result was an indictment for perjury by the Grand Jury of Carroll county, Arkansas. Drs. Young and Ducker, so far as I know, knew nothing about it. They were not before the Grand Jury. The matter was before the proper officers. The same day Dr. J. H. Nuttall gave in his evidence, I, having heard that he was going to leave town, wrote to the sheriff to that effect, hence the arrest yesterday."

P. C. FRITTS.

Notice to the Public.

It is true, as stated by Doctors Young and Ducker, that I was indicted. The indictment was found upon my testimony. I understand, as to the manner I dressed the fracture. I also understand that the perjury was assigned upon my testimony as to the manner I placed the splint extended to the end of the fingers. Dr. Geo. P. Young, who was my chief witness, fully corroborated me on this point. This much I give of the case that the public may understand the grounds of the case and the malicious charge made against me. As to the gentlemen denying having any connection with my arrest, I have this to say: I communicated to Dr. Young my intention to leave the city for a short time on private and important business to myself. I gave him this information in a very confidential conversation with him. As to Dr. Ducker's connection with it, I have the Sheriff's word for it, that Dr. Ducker came over to Berryville and told him that I was going to leave the state on Saturday, and upon this information the warrant was delivered to Dr. Ducker for my arrest, who brought it over to Eureka Springs for execution. As to the publication of the charge made by these gentlemen, its object is to throw odium on me. When I was notified, by the officer, of the charge, I at once got on my horse and went alone to Berryville, and gave bond for my appearance. It is for the public to say whether these gentlemen issued their circular and spread it over the city as a vindication of their wrongs, or whether they only intend to bring my name before the public associated with this charge.

Without attempting to discuss the merits of this case, or to boast of my innocence, I ask of all to notice the disposition of this case when it comes up for trial in the proper court.

Respectfully,
J. H. NUTTALL.

INVALIDS' ASSOCIATION.

April 3d, 1883.

A large number of ladies and gentlemen in attendance. Meeting conducted by Dr. Atwater, of Chicago. First order of business, reading of minutes of previous meeting; approved. Next in order was to elect officers for the next term of six months, which resulted as follows: Judge Ray, President; B. F. Allen, Vice President; D. J. Perry, Secretary. Next in order was to change time of meeting from Thursday to Friday. Motion prevailed and was unanimously adopted. The first meeting will be held in the Baptist Church on Friday, April 13.

L. E. Hamack came here from western Texas in Sept., 1880. Disease, fever sores of 22 years standing that had baffled the skill of twenty different doctors. Had been to Hot Springs 5 months, Lampas Springs, Texas 1 month, Sulphur Springs, Tex. 3 months, but found no relief until arriving here. In 9 days the waters took effect, and in six weeks the sores were healed up. "When I came here," he says, "I could not walk. The blood ran down my limbs. I can now walk with any man. Am 39 years of age."

Mr. L. E. Chamberlain came here Feb. 16, 1883, from Iowa City, Iowa. Disease, kidney and liver complaint, general debility and sore eyes. Bathing eyes in condensed water, and drank of all the waters, not too freely. After 6 weeks stay is ready to return home. Can run over the mountains as much as 10 or 12 miles a day. His eyes were afflicted when 11 years old. Is now 35 years of age. His address is Tiffin, Iowa.

Mrs. Sturtevant states that she came here two years ago from Ohio, with cancer on the face. Using all the waters, but principally Magnetic spring water. Is now well. Had been afflicted 18 months, suffering much pain 2 months before arriving here.

Mrs. Mudiott is an elderly lady, from Terra-Haut, Ind., of about 70 years of age, suffering generally debilitated. She is very enthusiastic in her praise of the waters.

Mrs. McElwee reports a man by the name of Cray, 65 years of age, who walked from Springfield, Mo. Disease, cancer in the nose. Was using Dairy spring water for 7 months, when it broke out in the mouth and got well immediately. He being in depressed circumstances financially, the citizens defrayed his expenses home, to relate to his friends that he is entirely cured.

Mr. J. B. Collins came here March 15, 1883, from Van Buren, Ark., with Dyspepsia, kidney complaint and choking sensations. Thinking the former diseases were cured he was ready to return home, but now thinks they are returning again, and asks to know which water is best. The choking is entirely well.

Robert Sampson, of Springfield, Mo., came here about Jan. 1, 1883, almost helpless with rheumatism and partial paralysis of lower limbs. Used Basin and Harding spring water with beneficial results. For the last two weeks has been using Hollis spring water and notices a marked improvement in his condition. The action on liver and kidneys is very prompt and decided.

Mrs. Emma Collins, of Washington county, Ark., came to the Hollis spring about Jan. 15, 1883, suffering with heart disease and female weakness. Uses the water regularly, and finds her heart disease and general condition much improved.

Mr. Robert Gray, from near Ozark, Ark., came here badly afflicted with rheumatism. Used the Hollis spring water one week and finds himself much improved in so short a time.

Mrs. J. Saunders, of St. Joseph, Mo., came to Eureka the 26th of Nov., 1882. Had been troubled for 10 years with induration of the liver and frequent passages of biliary calculi (gall stones) from which she suffered very great distress. Has had but two attacks since coming here. Also had catarrh of the throat. She gained 9 pounds while here. Returned home two weeks ago apparently well.

No further business, the association adjourned to meet again in the Baptist Church, April 13, at 2 p. m. All are earnestly solicited to attend.

Respectfully,

Recording Secretary.
